Religious Hospitallers of St. Joseph Have Served Sick, Injured For Past 325 Years

Order Founded in France in 17th Century; Moves to City in 1926

Founded by two saintly lay people in France in the 17th century, the order of the Religious Hospitallers of St. Joseph have served the sick and injured for past 325 years.

On May 1, 1926 the sisters had operated the St. Joseph hospital at Hartford which has recently completed a $928,000 addition.

At present there are eight sisters stationed here: Hospital administrator is Sister Donovan; Sister St. Paul is accountant; Sister St. Catherine, laboratory technician; Sister St. Aloysius, pharmacist; Sister St. Jude, record librarian; Sister St. Thomas, supervisor of clerical department; Sister Prendergast, supervisor of medical and surgical department; and Sister St. Frances, supervisor of central supply and x-ray.

Have Montreal Hospital

The Hartford hospital is only one of many served by the Religious Hospitallers. They serve the second oldest hospital in Canada, the Hotel-Dieu de Montreal. The headquarters of the order is at Kingston, Ontario.

The beginning of the order dates back to the seventeenth century. On August 8, 1641, an intrepid little band of colonists from France arrived safely in the new world. At the foot of Mount Royal in May, 1642 a tiny hospital was erected.

When the colony in New France was about to be dissolved for lack of funds, Jeanne Marie "Angel of the Colony" more than once came to the rescue with financial aid. She was the first lay nurse in North America and the founder of the Hotel-Dieu at Montreal. Her many virtues, especially for her help to the poor and neglected, were given the Holy Habit of Religion. Marie de La Ferre was one of the few English speaking sisters at Hotel-Dieu.

Spread to Chicago

The first foundation outside of Montreal was established in 1841 at Kingston, Ontario. Near the turn of the century a plea came from Chicago, from Rev. Basil P. Murray, for the sisters to spread the Service across the border. Father Murray was the original founder and prior of St. Bernard's parish in Chicago's south side.

Today, the Religious Hospitallers of St. Joseph have 11 hospitals in Canada and nine in the United States, including three in Wisconsin, at Hartford, Antigo (The Langlade county memorial hospital) and New London.

In 1929, the building in the background, the present hospital was constructed. This year additions to the front and rear of the building in the background were added as the hospital continues to expand to serve the growing community.

Hospital At Hartford 40 Years Old

First Hospital Completed in 1920; New $200,000 Building Finished in 1929

St. Joseph hospital at Hartford is still quite a young institution. The small, original hospital, to the east of the present structure, was completed in 1920.

Secular nurses operated the hospital until May, 1926 when the Religious Hospitallers of St. Joseph came here to take over the operation. The sisters opened their hospital on May 12.

The new owners accepted the hospital subject to a debt of $10,000. On April 5 at 2 p.m., in the K of C hall over the Schultz Brothers in Hartford, a meeting of all persons holding notes against the hospital was held. On May 21 the name of the Hartford hospital was changed from Hartford General hospital to St. Joseph’s hospital.

Immediately, about 45 Hartford ladies got together to form a women’s auxiliary to the hospital. Among those ladies who spoke on behalf of an auxiliary in August, 1926 were Mrs. H. M. LeCount, Mrs. Mary Everett, Mrs. I. A. Goetz, Mrs. C. J. Heppe, Mrs. I. Bonnycastle, Mrs. Jacob Greenless, Mrs. L. C. Morgan and Mrs. F. W. Sachse.

New Hospital Started

The auxiliary was to be entirely non-sectarian, with women of all organizations, regardless of religious beliefs or place in society, urged to join. In December of 1926, the Auxiliary made $750 on a bazaar. The money went toward the purchase of Pathological laboratory equipment, needed linen, surgical gowns and nightgowns for children patients.

The industrious ladies auxiliary held other events, such as benefit movies, various sales- and donation days and style shows.

In August of 1928 work was begun on a new $175,000 hospital building. When finished the hospital was to have the best of accommodations for 50 patients. The new 50-bed structure would replace the old building to the east, which would be used as a Sisters' home and convent.

Placed in Cornerstone

On Oct. 23, 1928 a throng of people attended the laying of the cornerstone of the new hospital building. Principal speakers on that day were Rev. Joseph Hartmann, pastor of St. Kilian church, Mayor J. H. Lieven, Attorney Harry Anson and Rev. Edward Gaye of Marquette University. In making the cornerstone, Father Hartmann was assisted by Mr. Herbert of Herbert & Kuenzi, the architects.

Sealed in the cornerstone were a copper box containing a form document for cornerstones, a copy of the Hartford Times and several coins.

After 10 months of labor, the new hospital was ready to be occupied.

$390,000 Expansion Program Gives Hartford Area Modern, Complete Facility

Hartford and surrounding area can be proud of the new additions, equipment and remodeling at the St. Joseph hospital, which now must rank as one of the most completely modern hospitals in the state.

The expansion program will cost a total of $390,000. The facilities added have almost doubled the capacity of the hospital. Now, a minimum of 65 patients can receive the best of medical care. This does not include a four-bed pediatric ward, nor a nursery which can accommodate 14 babies.

Lobby is Beautiful

The work done is embodied in two additions and remodeling to the original hospital.

The south addition is one-story and includes the lobby and administrative offices. The lobby is a thing of beauty with marble walls, terrazzo floors, acoustical metal pan ceiling with indirect lighting, and attractive furniture and furnishings. The lobby includes a gift shop, telephone billing information desk and admitting room.

In the three-story, north addition, the basement floor includes laundry and sewing room, linen storage, a new, one-stall ambulance entrance with an electrically-operated door, anesthesia storage and distribution manifold.

New Heating Plant

Heating is provided by two new automatic combination oil burning units, with 200 horsepower capacity boilers. An auxiliary electrical unit will automatically go into operation in case of a power failure. All power and telephone lines are located underground as a safety feature.

Work in the laundry is done by two automatic washers, with two extractors and one dryer. A large mangle reduces ironing requirements to a minimum. The laundry meets 40 by 47 ft. and has (continued on page 11)

Room for 40
Adjoining the kitchen is the dishwashing room, with an electric dishwasher. There is a cafeteria which can seat 40 persons at one time. It is attractively painted and has a metal paneled acoustical ceiling.

The second floor of the new addition contains patients rooms, which are fitted with the latest of everything. Each has a built-in dresser and wardrobe, with toilet facilities, nurse call system, telephone, and combination radio and television. There are also bedside cabinets, overbed tables, reading lamps, night lamps, and additional electrical outlets. All 10 rooms are painted in pastel shades, and have attractive drapes. The semi-private rooms have a cubicle curtain suspended from the ceiling between the beds for additional privacy.

As another feature, each room is equipped to provide oxygen for patients use. A wall outlet connects each room with a central oxygen storage room, located next to the transformer vault.

New Nurses Stations
Centrally located nurses stations have been provided in the remodeled section on the second and third floors of the original building.

They consist of a chart desk, pantry, supervisor’s office, work area for dispensing drugs and supplies, and a dumb waiter, which connects with the central supply department.

On the third floor of the new building, the operating rooms, sub-sterilizing room, doctors scrub-up room, anesthesia storage, clean-up room and doctors’ lounge.

Both operating rooms are large, with pastel green tile, walls, and suspended tile ceilings. Oxygen is piped in, and is anesthesia and suction. The operating rooms are air conditioned throughout. Generating equipment for the air conditioners is located in a penthouse on the roof.

Central Supply Room
One of the operating rooms is equipped to do hysteroscopy and orthopedic work. A 200 sa. m. mobile X-ray unit forms part of this equipment.

Central supply is located on the east side of the surgical corridor. It has a large storage room, with metal storage cabinets. There are also two sterilizers for sterilizing instruments and all material used for patients, two storage rooms for sterile supplies for surgery and X-ray use, a clean-up room, glove room and solution room and a nurses’ room.

EMPLOYEES of St. Joseph hospital are shown enjoying a snack in the new hospital cafeteria in the recently completed addition to the Hartford hospital. The new cafeteria is well lighted and easy to clean. There are about 78 employees, both full and part-time, at the hospital.

TV for All Rooms
Oxygen has been provided for all patients rooms and wards, and television and telephones have been installed in all rooms in the original building. An up to date recovery room is also located close to the patients’ room where patients returning from surgery are given special care. This room is air conditioned, has piped-in oxygen and suction, telephone and nurses call bell. It is equipped with four special beds.

Number of Patients At Hospital Double - Those in 1939

The number of patients served by St. Joseph's Hospital in Hartford has increased greatly in the past few years.

In 1959 there were 233 patients admitted to the hospital, which had an occupancy of 55%. In 1939, the first year that the hospital was in operation, the total had risen to 1,505. From May 1, 1945 to Dec. 31, 1959, there were 30 babies born at the hospital, 225 patients were served. There were 54 firms involved in the construction of the new additions.

Members intended to do this by providing funds for various hospital needs, such as dress revues, to raise funds for hospital purposes. The Guild is a very large and active group.

54 Firms Helped To Build New Additions

Work on a new addition to Hartford's St. Joseph hospital was done by many contractors. The general contractor on the project, begun in May, 1957, was C. D. Smith and Son of Fond du Lac. Other major work was done by: Uptown Electric, Waupaca, B. Niehoff and Sons, Watertown; heating and ventilating contractor, Waterfall; Plummer, Madison, Plumbing; and others.
